

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

We are now at the mid-point in the operating year of the UGRA and in my mandate as President. Fall of 2015 was a busy time for the executive and I expect this will continue through this winter and into the spring. Some of what has been accomplished is highlighted in reports in this newsletter and I will comment on them only briefly.

One major change led by Kent Percival, our Vice-President, has been the development of a new web page for the Association using relatively new and simple software which will make it easier for us to keep you informed of what we are doing and items of interest. Our membership data base was tied to the old web page and we have now moved it to a stand-alone using Microsoft Access. This will make it much easier to ensure the privacy and security of the data base as well as to add information to it – see the update by Kent elsewhere in the newsletter. I would also like to reiterate that none of the information on our data base is shared with anyone else, including the university.

We also continue to monitor the situation with regard to Pension Benefits and in particular the ongoing negotiations among a number of universities in Ontario, including Guelph, to create a Jointly Sponsored Pension Plan (JSPP). Progress on this and a link to a web site where you can get updates is given in the article by Doug Badger, our UGRA representative on the Board of Governors Pension sub-Committee. Theoretically, if it is implemented, it should not affect the pensions of all those who retired prior to the date that the university signs on. However, there are issues that we need to continue to monitor and we will keep you updated on the negotiations as they unfold.

The Fall Forum which focused on issues related to older drivers was very well attended and produced a lot of stimulating questions and discussion – see the report elsewhere. Planning for the Spring Forum on Thursday June 14 is now underway on a theme of “Financial Literacy”. We will have a panel of three experts who will discuss topics such as preventing fraud and identity theft, tax planning and managing debt, and estates and inheritance. The discussion will start as usual at 2:00 but we will have refreshments available from 1:15 to allow lots of time for people to come early and socialise before the start.

I would like to add my thanks all those retirees who contributed so generously to the United Way campaign – see report by Janet Kaufman – and to our UGRA Scholarship campaign. Thanks also to those of you who have made a membership contribution to the UGRA this year. We are now able to keep track of these contributions and will send out reminders each Fall. If you have not made a contribution please check the last page of the newsletter to see how to do this. If you are unsure as to whether you have already done this please send an email to secretary@ugra.ca and we can check this for you.

UofG Fall Forum 2015

A very successful Fall Forum was held in early November, attended by many retired faculty and partners as well as by a small number of persons from Third Age Learning Guelph. Dr. Brenda Vrkljan of McMaster presented an informative lecture on the character and potential driving habits of elderly persons, based on studies of older drivers in Canada and abroad. Emphasizing that driving was an important element in modern social life and was central for most elderly remaining healthy and active in their community, she discussed the main characteristics and techniques of the CanDrive study of elderly driving. This is a study by occupational therapists using CIHR funding.

At the moment, the CanDrive study here and in Australia employs a five-year longitudinal examination of elderly drivers' physical and mental reaction times, linking drivers' ages and traffic records and using the results of cognitive testing. The drivers involved cover a broad social spectrum of age (70+), gender, residence and education. She showed a brief film of bad driving habits and concluded with the current results for low mileage drivers and higher mileage drivers.

Sgt. David Doxey of the Guelph Police Service then discussed typical driving errors of older drivers, emphasizing that traffic accidents for such drivers rises dramatically for most drivers after age 75.

Older drivers are less likely to be involved in traffic offences involving use of alcohol, night-time driving and/or speeding. On the other hand, older drivers are more likely to be involved in traffic accidents involving intersections, turning, stop signs, misjudging time and/or distance from objects, and remaining in designated lanes.

Sgt. Doxey brought the audience's attention to Ontario Bill 31, a crucial section of which will come into force on 1 January 2016. It requires that drivers must allow any pedestrian (who had legally entered an intersection walkway) to clear the entire walkway before proceeding. When questioners pointed out the potential problems in instances of particularly wide streets or where medians existed half-way across, Sgt. Doxey answered that police are seeking clarification of this section of the Bill. Further information may well be forthcoming.

Sgt. Doxey outlined the Ontario requirements for drivers aged 80 or more, involving renewal of their licenses. He also pointed out that the Ontario government tracks the accident records of drivers aged 70 or more, and that those records can result in warnings or more from the appropriate government agency. Finally, in response to another question it was pointed out that drivers education programmes exist in various communities for older drivers (comparable to such as Young Drivers of Canada) and that such retraining might affect one's insurance rates.

more than $20,000. Rich Moccia and Patricia Tersigni, co-chairs of the University of Guelph United Way Steering Committee, called the amount donated by retirees "amazing" and "humbling". Overall, United Way Guelph Wellington Dufferin's 2015 campaign raised over $3.6 million, which will support 95 programs at 57 local agencies. This will allow social and community support programs to continue making our community a better place. To see how your donations are creating a stronger community, visit www.unitedwayguelph.com.

Pension Update

Do you know what Ontario's teachers, municipal employees, and hospital workers take for granted with University employees are missing? It's a multi-employer jointly sponsored pension plan (JSPP). Public sector workers in the aforementioned areas are members of the Ontario Teachers' Pension Plan (OTPP), OMERS, and HOOP respectively.

The University sector is moving in this direction via a 'University Pension Project' led by the Council of Ontario Universities and the Ontario Confederation of University Faculty Associations (OCUFA). The goal of the Project is to create a framework for a multi-employer jointly sponsored pension plan which an existing single-employer University sector may join.

A growing number of Ontario Universities (latest count = 10) are participating in the discussions. The project is being encouraged (and funded) by the Ontario government, and both labour and employer pension expertise has been retained. Guelph's participation includes the Faculty Association (UGFA), other bargaining groups and senior administrators.

The primary motivation for pursuing a JSPP is potential "solvency relief". Guelph's pension plans (and most of our fellow institutions) have much higher solvency deficits compared to 'going concern' funding requirements. Unfortunately the province is forcing employers with single-employer plans to aggressively address their pension deficits using the more onerous solvency (wind-up) calculation.

Addressing the solvency deficit would require Guelph to contribute an additional several tens of millions of dollars a year – a figure that would impose a very heavy burden on the university budget. The primary benefit of joining a multi-employer JSPP is that this would not be a short-term requirement.

There are additional benefits and risks associated with the potential transition from single-employer plans to a multi-employer JSPP, but a full discussion is beyond the scope of this update.

The four-phase Pension Project (i.e. research, design, build, transition) has deliverables including the following:

- A consent mechanism that meets government requirements

- A communications/engagement plan

- An implementation plan

The Pension Project web-site, being maintained by OCUFA, will have the most current information as the project progresses. Once a consensus design framework for the new pension plan is achieved, each University will determine whether they will proceed to the next phase. Stay tuned for further news.

N.B. It is important to note that pension benefits already earned and pensions currently being paid are guaranteed under law never to be reduced, thus our current pensions would not be affected.

Current News of Retirees

Dana Paramskis (SOLAL) has been working for some time with two colleagues on an app for the iPhone called Francofone. It is a multimedia program (visual, text and audio) for vocabulary and culture in French, aimed at people who might like to brush up on their rusty French skills. The levels are from advanced basic to intermediate, with a few examples at a higher level. It is now available via iTunes for $2.99 US. It is really friendly, as in offering all sorts of help and clues to reach the right answer. So more like a game rather than a dull learning exercise.

10 A.M. How we got Here from There... A whirlwind Tour of English Canadian Literature

Gary Draper
University of Waterloo

January 13 - Where We Are Now, Part 1

Canadian writing is thriving in the twenty-first century. In the first session we'll consider two very different but equally interesting contemporary Canadian writers.

January 20 - Literary Ancestors

Two of the most obvious aspects of early Canadian writing are the documentary mode and a taste for satire and humour. The second session will focus on a memoir of settlement from the nineteenth century and a gentle satire of small town life from the twentieth.

January 27 - Canadian Voices

In the first half of the twentieth century, Canadian novelists and short story writers began to create works of fiction that expressed the spirit of a young country in all its regional variety.

February 3 - Regional Variations

In post-war Canada, writers from one end of the country to the other were continuing to explore a variety of themes and beginning to play with aesthetic conventions.

February 10 - The Great Canadian Novel(s)

Just before and after Canada's centennial year, Canadian writing began to blossom, and to attract a much wider readership.

February 17 - Confidently Canadian

By the latter part of the twentieth century, Canadians were producing work in both prose and poetry that was internationally recognized and was also unselfconsciously rooted in its own local soil.

February 24 - First Nations Stories

In recent years a number of writers with First Nations backgrounds have gained a wide readership; but First Nations people have been telling their stories since time immemorial.

March 2 - Where We Are Now, part 2

Readers of Canadian fiction often have a hard time choosing what to read among a host of excellent young writers. We'll close by looking at two of the best.

Grand River Cruise?

UGRA is making tentative plans for a special activity, a dinner cruise on the Grand River from Caledonia to Brantford and return (total of about 40 Km and taking about 3.5 hours. The cost for the cruise and dinner would be about $50.00 per person (cash bar available). If there is enough interest, UGRA will also arrange bus transport from Guelph to Caledonia and back at a modest extra cost. UGRA is thinking that a talk on the Six-Nations history and recent issues would be educational during the cruise and possibly some music, too. For information on Grand River Cruises please look at www.grandrivercruises.ca. The UGRA executive would like an expression of interest (no obligation, of course) so please let us know with a return message to Peter Kevan. (pkevan@uoguelph.ca)

Be a Contributing Member of the UGRA (2016-2017)

All retirees are automatically members of the University of Guelph Retirees Association, but our capacity to operate effectively on behalf of retirees depends on members volunteering to become contributing members. This money covers the cost of the newsletter and meeting room rentals for the AGM and the spring and fall forums. It also enables the UGRA to send a representative to the annual meeting of College and University Retiree Associations of Canada.

Please use the attached Contributing Membership Form to send with your Contributing Membership payment. In line with the resolution passed at the 2015 AGM we suggest a contribution of $25 but we welcome contributions of any size whether smaller or larger.

We have also provided a place on the form for those who might wish to contribute more actively to the UGRA by serving on the executive or by working on a committee or task group to carry out short-term projects.

Strategic Renewal Initiative

The University has launched a strategic renewal project, in part because so many of the senior administrators are relatively new to the Guelph campus and seek to develop ideas about the directions in which they should be taking the University. Phase 1 of the project began in the Fall of 2015 with a number of community consultations — small group discussions, facilitated conversations and various forms of online engagement. As part of this phase of the project the UGRA Executive Committee met with Dr. Kerry Daly in November.

The input from Phase 1 will be summarized into a number of overarching themes. In Phase 2 these themes will be explored by working groups with the expectation of creating a final set of recommendations by the end of March 2016. From these recommendations a Strategic Renewal Plan will be drafted to guide the evolution of the University over the next five to ten years. It is expected that the entire process will be completed by the end of June.

All members of the University community, including retirees, are invited to attend any of the open meetings and/or to join the discussion at #Charting the Path. The project is explained at <http://strategicrenewal.uoguelph.ca/>

The UGRA Executive Committee Needs Feedback

The UGRA Executive Committee acts on behalf of the interests of University of Guelph retirees. Without input from our members, we operate partly in a vacuum where we try to imagine what retirees see as important issues and concerns. To do our job well, we could use more information, so please take the opportunity to let us know what's on your mind.
