UGRA’S PRESIDENT’S MESSAGE

One of my goals for this year will be to initiate programs to make UGRA more helpful to all of its constituents and also to encourage more retirees to become involved. In that regard, an event is currently being planned for late March or early April 2011 that should be of interest to all members. The time and location will be announced in an upcoming Newsletter and you will also be notified by email. Therefore, if we don’t have your email address on file please forward it to us (no third parties will receive your information).

Dana Paramkas is currently working diligently to update the UGRA website and you are encouraged to visit the site and give us your feedback.

Once again this year, the UGRA executive is lending support for the Guelph Wellington United Way campaign and all retirees are encouraged to give as they are able. Given we have more retirees this year, hopefully we can improve upon the very generous $55,000 which UGRA members gave to last year’s campaign.

Your UGRA executive meets once a month between September and June, culminating with the AGM in June. If you have any questions or have items of interest to the membership as a whole, please do not hesitate to contact any of us.

Dale Lockie, President

It is my privilege to serve as the President of the University of Guelph Retirees Association for the 2010-11 year, and work with the Executive Committee elected at the Annual General Meeting in June. In addition to the members from last year, Ron Downey, Peter Landoni, Eric Reiche and Carole Stewart were elected to their first term at the AGM. A full list of Committee members and their responsibilities are outlined elsewhere in the Newsletter.

Given the poor financial conditions of pension plans in general and the University of Guelph plans in particular (excluding the Non-Professional Plan) it is likely that when the actuarial valuation is completed for the Professional and Retirement Plans, very significant “wind-up” deficits will exist. This is due to the state of the global equity markets but it is also related to the low interest rate environment, which is a key determinant of the plans’ liabilities. Therefore, the possibility for any “ad hoc” inflation protection in the short-term is extremely remote; however, we will continue to press for improvements for members of the Non-Professional Plan, which have the lowest pensions of the three plans, and in all likelihood this plan will show a significant surplus when the actuarial valuation has been completed.
The 2010 Annual General Meeting of the University of Guelph Retirees Association was held at the Arboretum Centre on June 17. About 35 members were in attendance.

The first part of the meeting was devoted to a presentation made by John Miles, Associate Vice President-Finance and Services at the University of Guelph. John addressed the financial health of the University’s pension plans. Using many charts and graphs, he gave those in attendance a very detailed picture of the fiscal and regulatory situation facing the University with respect to pensions. He pointed out that the Province requires that all plans be tested under two conditions. First, the plans are examined to see if they meet their obligations to retirees under the assumption that the University continues in business and that both the University and current employees sustain their contributions to the plans. This is called the ‘going concern valuation’. Second, they are examined to see if the plans can meet their obligations to retirees should the University go out of business and cease contributing to the plans. This is called the ‘solvent valuation’.

He noted that under the tests, the U of G plans readily pass the going concern valuation but appeared to be unlikely to pass the solvency valuation test, which was scheduled to take place on August 1, 2010. As he observed, given that the University will be a continuing ongoing concern, retirees should have no worries about the capacity of the plans to meet their pension payment obligations. The solvency valuation requirements, however, are another matter. While they are not a threat to retirees, they present the University with very difficult choices.

The remainder of his presentation was directed at the various choices facing the institution as it struggles to satisfy the solvency valuation demands. He pointed out that some easing of rules by the provincial government would be helpful and that the University Presidents were working with the province to find solutions. Finally, he entertained questions from those in attendance. The ensuing discussion was lively and informative.

The usual AGM business was conducted in the second part of the meeting. Members approved a set of changes to the UGRA Constitution intended to clarify director terms of office and to simplify the language describing which directors would be designated as officers. The amended Constitution is now posted on the UGRA website.

Ken Grant, acting as Treasurer, presented the financial statements for the Association. Our finances remain in good health although there was a sharp drop in Contributing Membership fee income in the past year. Luckily, our costs were also lower so that the deficit was minimal. The membership approved a new budget for 2010-2011, as presented in the Spring UGRA Newsletter.

Ken Grant, in his role as Chair of the Nominating Committee, presented the slate of nominees comprised of 8 returning directors (Gary Fankie, Bonnie Hamilton, John Holt, Dale Lockie, Phil Keddie, Dana Panamzkas, Brue Ryan, Mark Sears) and 4 new nominees (Ron Downey, Peter Landoni, Erich Reicher, Carole Stewart). The slate was deemed elected when no other nominations were received from the floor. The officers for 2010-2011 are Bruce Ryan (Past President), Dale Lockie (President), Gary Frankie (Vice President), John Holt (Treasurer), Carole Stewart (Secretary).

The meeting ended after the new President (Dale Lockie) took the floor and outlined what he saw as the challenges facing the Association over the next year.

No Increase to Pension Payments for 2010-2011

There will be no increase to pension payments this September as the increase in the Consumer Price Index for Canada (CPI) did not exceed 2% over the past year. The increase in CPI has been calculated at .52%. In accordance with plan terms, this amount has been determined based on the average level of the CPI index during the May 2009 - April 2010 period compared to the average level of the index during the May 2008 - April 2009 period.

Important Notice for UGRA Members Holidaying in Cuba

A few months ago, Sun Life, our health insurance carrier, notified us of a change in health insurance coverage requirements for all visitors to Cuba: As of May 1, 2010, Cuba requires visitors to carry proof of medical insurance.

The notification from Sun Life goes on to say: Foreign citizens who have temporary residence in Cuba must also have medical insurance that covers them for the duration of their stay. The Travel Health Insurance Association (THLA) has been advised that Cuban authorities will accept either a Provincial Health Insurance card or proof of private travel insurance coverage as sufficient proof to meet this requirement. Without either of these forms of proof visitors will be required to buy insurance from Cuban companies upon arrival.

Members and dependents should be prepared to present the following proof of medical coverage:

1. Provincial Health Insurance card. Each member of the family should travel with their own personalized card. Even though Provincial Health Insurance Plan coverage may gain you entry into Cuba, you should not rely on it as your only form of emergency medical coverage.

2. Sun Life Financial Coverage card including the Travel Card portion. The Europ Assistance logo should be clearly visible on the card as proof of the travel assistance provider.

3. Copy of covered expenses under your emergency travel assistance benefit. Copy the section of your plan member booklet, which describes your out-of country and travel coverage.

As an option, members travelling alone or with families to Cuba can contact the Sun Life Group Benefits Customer Care Centre at 1-800-361-6212 to obtain a letter outlining their coverage and listing any covered dependents.

CURAC Conference 2010

The Annual CURAC Conference at York University in May 2010 had the theme “Pensions, Benefits, and Beyond,” I will try to briefly cover some of the highlights.

A major presenter was Harry Arthurs, former president of York and chair of the Ontario Commission on Pensions. He sees problems in the control, the actuarial assumptions made, and the governments’ regulation of the funds. For universities, he proposes moving to a higher safety margin, and improved transparency and equality in the governance of plans. The teachers’ and civil servants’ plans are examples of pension plans that universities could copy. Arthurs predicts that in the short term there will be a decline in pension benefits and in the longer term university pension plans will be switched to a hybrid benefits and contributions scheme.

Hervoje Lakota, an actuary with Mercer LTD, noted that in general defined benefit plans (like Guelph’s) have fared better than defined contribution plans. He links the overall decline in pension plans to poor investment strategies, decreased expectations of future interest rates, longer living by retirees, and high rates of salary increases in recent years. This all leads to a lower pension solvency valuation. Lakota advocates that this solvency - assumption (will universities go bankrupt?) is the big problem in Ontario, other provinces have exempted universities. Lakota also believes there will be a push by universities to reduce benefits and switch to some version of a hybrid plan.

There was discussion of retiree privileges involving such matters as computer and library access, free perks such as parking and gym use, and office/meeting space for the retiree organization. My impression is that across universities, Guelph is somewhere in the middle range of such benefits. Other discussion centered around extended health and other benefits. Ann Schramm of Morneau Sebaco Funds warned that we live longer so that we should be planning for twenty to twenty-five years beyond. She pointed out that most university retirees have some form of basic extended health and dental coverage, but we need to be more aware of what other coverage to consider. For example, medication not usually covered by the Ontario Drug Benefit Program could be covered by retiree plans if medically necessary. She recommended becoming knowledgeable about community services for in-home assistance, long term care, and assisted living facilities.

A broader talk on retirement considerations was given by Judith Hall, a retired medical faculty member from UBC. She provided simple examples of do’s (occasionally sleep in) and don’ts (race for deadlines) that should govern our lives. She talked about other activities in retirement, including continued involvement in the university (but some universities are not as amenable as UBC). Retirees need to develop contacts with individuals in the administration and faculty associations, and must raise their own visibility about their contributions to the academic community.

Another large portion of the conference was devoted to sessions on retiree association activities and presentations of surveys of retirees’ wishes. One distinctive contribution here was from the Association of Retirees of Higher Education (AROHE) who presented data from their conferences and surveys in the U.S. and Canada. The ideas and lists from the CURAC conference sessions would be too long for this space, but some of the more popular undertakings in Canadian universities were yearly social events (luncheons, cocktail hours), workshops on retirement, and speaker forums on various topics.

President Summerlee’s Retirees Social 2010

On September 2, President Alastair Summerlee hosted a Dessert Social for members of the UGRA. This year’s Social was held in the University Club in the University Centre. About 25 retirees spent a relaxing two hours enjoying delicious desserts along with coffee and tea while they caught up on old times with friends not often seen. President Summerlee spoke to the attendees about developments at the University and his plans for the future.

Among the topics President Summerlee talked about was the very important BetterPlanet Project the details of which can be seen at: www.thebetterplanetproject.ca. Under the aegis of the project the University plans to raise 200 million dollars to support a wide range of initiatives aimed at to helping to improve the quality of food, environment, health and communities here and around the world.

President Summerlee directly addressed the security of the pension plans and assured the audience that the University is obligated and is able to pay to current retirees the benefits to which they are entitled under the provisions of the plans. He further noted that the provincial government had introduced measures that likely will result in pension changes for those not yet retired. However, any such changes cannot be made retroactive; current retirees will continue to receive the payments they now receive and under the same conditions.

President Summerlee also described the various building projects going on around the campus including the very extensive upgrading of the Axelrod Building. In order to bring the building up to current energy efficiency standards, the building is getting an entire new skin so that appropriate insulating materials can be installed. He also described a particular satisfaction with the recent demolition of the old Textiles Building that was constructed as a temporary building in W/W II. Despite the efforts of several Presidents of the University of Guelph who declared the building’s inmanent end, it repeatedly found new albeit temporary uses. President Summerlee observed that he was beginning to worry that the Textiles Building would also outlast his tenure as President.

The Pension Plan Situation
as of October 28, 2010

Facing proposed provincial legislation, the University of Guelph is reviewing options for restructuring its pension plans. In August, Ontario universities were granted the opportunity to receive temporary, conditional relief from making significant pension solvency payments that had been scheduled to begin under current legislation. For U of G, existing requirements would have meant increasing its pension plan contributions from the current payment of $22 million a year to between $70 million and $100 million every year for the next five years.

To qualify for relief, sponsors of underfunded pension plans have been told by the province to develop strategies to provide for the long-term financial viability of their plans. The government has suggested that options could include moving U of G’s defined-benefit plans from single-employer plans (plan is solely sponsored by the employer) to jointly sponsored pension plans (members and the employer share responsibility) or a combination of increasing pension contributions from both employees and employers and reducing benefits.

As provincial regulations are still forthcoming, the extent of any expected “relief” is unknown. But should U of G qualify, it’s expected it would have to pay an estimated $40 million a year for the three-year period. To be considered for relief, the University must file a plan for changing its pensions at the beginning of 2011. The plan will be shared with members and employee groups.

U of G has been meeting with employee groups to inform people about the situation. A number of options are being discussed, including increasing contributions from both the University and employees and reducing benefits such as permanent early retirement options. A town hall meeting on pension plans is being planned for November.

The benefits of current retirees would not be affected.
